Weekly Summary (Short summary about what you did this week)
Not really an official sprint due to the second half of the would be sprint is the first half of thanksgiving break.

Excel export is in review. An interesting bug has surfaced during the review cycle. The import works fine for excel files created on windows machines, but doesn't like files created on other machines. This is being fixed.

We have added a more appealing 404 page with an appropriate image. The image we got from a friend of one of the developers and so there are no copyright issues for it. Similarly, the images on the search page have been swapped out for copyright free images. Some of these images are just sketches at the moment, but we no longer need to worry about copyright on any of the images.

Delete functionality for a butterfly has been developed. It still needs to be reviewed and merged in, but it should be resolved early next week.

The label issue on the stats page has been resolved on the Front Page branch. The branch includes many updates, at this point, which is making reviewing of the item difficult. Developer and Reviewer are working to get this code reviewed and merged in.
